Yes, we do!

Rest assured, your data is safe and we have sophisticated infrastructure and procedures in place for redundancy and security. Read more about DrChrono's security infrastructure here. Should you face a disaster yourself (and we hope that you don't, but should that happen), the great news is that once you are back up and running with new network-connected hardware devices you are able to access your data once again with DrChrono's cloud-based architecture
