Become a Beta and Design Partner

Last modified on 06/18/2025 8:20 pm EDT

Beta and design partners build a collaborative relationship between DrChrono and our Product Development team to define, design, test, and validate pre-release versions of new software we've developed on our web and mobile product offerings.

- User experience testing: Evaluate the user interface on the web and mobile platform, helping design for intuitiveness, accessibility, and user-friendliness within the DrChrono workflows.
- Workflow integration: Help assess how well the web and mobile platforms integrate into your specific workflow, identifying areas of improvement and ensuring seamless adoption.
- Feedback collection: Providing constructive feedback on the software's features, usability, and any identified bugs or glitches. This feedback is instrumental in refining the product.

Benefits of becoming a beta partner

- Early access: Gain early access to new product offerings, providing a competitive advantage and the opportunity to influence the final product's features.
- Influence on development: You can contribute to the software's development by providing insights and suggestions and better shaping the final product to our customer's needs.

Interested in becoming a beta partner?

Complete the beta user and design partner interest survey. The Product Development team will contact you and walk you through the beta program.